Observations

Once the different research groups have outlined their Business Organisation research lines, the student will have to develop a project about one of the research lines, under the leadership of one of the researchers (PhD) of that specific research line. The above mentioned project could consist of, for instance, a literature review or the development of empirical studies based on previous research works. The project will be integrated by the following sections: introduction (motivation, objectives and working plan), main body of the work with the necessary sections, conclusions and references.

Observations for part-time students

Part-time students will develop a Project in a Business Organisation research line similar to the one developed by full-time students.
